B. whereas on 14 March Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates re-enforced the government crack down by sending troops into Bahrain under the banner of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC),

C. whereas the next day, on 15 March, the government of King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa declared a three month state of emergency, imposed martial law and violently repressed the demonstrations, leaving reportedly over 40 people dead, hundreds injured and dozens disappeared;

D. whereas hundreds of human rights activists, journalists, teachers, medical professionals and workers have been arrested, dismissed from their jobs or charged with false offences; whereas according to reports by human rights organisations many have suffered torture and maltreatment ; whereas numerous cases of online censorship and website blocking have been recorded,

E. whereas at least 33 protesters - among them union leaders and professional athletes - have in the meantime received sentences ranging from three years to lifetime,

F. whereas security forces reportedly searched ambulances and medical centres for wounded demonstrators, dragged gravely ill patients out of hospital and obliged the medical staff to turn parts of the Salmaniya Medical Complex, the most important hospital of Bahrain, into a prison for wounded protesters who were then subject to maltreatment by the security forces,

G. whereas on 29 September, the National Safety Lower Court, a special military court, convicted 20 doctors, nurses, and paramedics on trumped up charges to up to 15 years imprisonment; whereas however, Bahrain's attorney general, Ali Alboainain, announced on Wednesday 5 October that the 20 should be "retried before the ordinary courts",

4. Condemns the military intervention of the Gulf Cooperation Council under the leadership of Saudi Arabia in support of the repression of the Bahraini democracy movement and calls for the immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops;
5. Calls the use of Special military courts to try civilians into question because the conditions guaranteeing a fair trial are more difficult to meet including the independence of the judges and the right to presumption of innocence and against self-incrimination; insists that confessions obtained under torture or duress cannot be used as evidence in court hearings, every detained person must be charged with a recognizable criminal offence, have adequate access to a lawyer and enough time to prepare a defence;
6. Welcomes the decision of the Attorney General to retry the convicted doctors and nurses in front of a civilian court but considers that all charges against them should be dropped since they were acting in their professional duty;

10. Notes positively the setting up of the commission to investigate human rights violations during recent government crack down if the inquiry is impartial and transparent and calls on the Government to ensure that perpetrators of human rights violations and persons responsible for the attacks against peaceful demonstrators are brought to justice and tried in a due process;
