- Video statement by Philippe Lamberts (FR)
- Video statement by Yannick Jadot (FR)

To which extent can China and the EU be partners and/or competitors on the future of industry? Does China have the capacity to outgrow Europe's blooming Green industry? Do we have to be afraid of that? Or does a cooperative approach work better than a zero-sum-game perspective? China does face huge challenges in reaching its goals - the EU is beginning a continental industrial policy. What could be priorities for cooperation and what should be the problems between both sides to be tackled with particular attention?
