Black silhouettes lobby business © nico_blue

en | de | es

Press release | 10.07.2018

MEPs' outside activities show it's time to overhaul Parliament's ethics rules

Side jobs

Today, a report by Transparency International EU on the outside activities of MEPs shows that up to 104 MEPs have earned more than €100,000 each over the last four years on top of their salaries as full-time MEPs. Three MEPs currently engage in paid activities with companies listed as lobby organisations on the EU Transparency Register, which is in violation of the new rules of procedure and poses serious risks of conflicts of interest.

Sven Giegold MEP, the European Parliament's rapporteur on Transparency, Accountability and Integrity in the EU Institutions said:

"The fact that certain MEPs are earning so much on the side of their day jobs is worrying for European democracy. In five years there have been 24 breaches of the Code of Conduct for MEPs but absolutely zero sanctions for those who break the rules, which shows the current set-up of self-control by MEPs themselves simply is not working. It's time for an independent ethics committee to keep MEPs in check. The Parliament's rules need to be tightened-up to make sure that Members are working in the interests of their constituents and not lobbying their colleagues for money and MEPs must disclose who employs them, including clients if they are lawyers.

"The Greens/EFA group have tried several times to improve the situation by enforcing the ban on lobbying side jobs by having MEPs list their possible clients and regular checks on Members' declarations. However, other groups do not seem to want to bring greater scrutiny to their own activities. The Parliament should take this opportunity to look at how best to overhaul the ethics system in tomorrow's Constitutional Affairs committee. It's scandalous that far-right MEPs seem to be abusing their positions to make money off of the very same institution they are attempting to undermine."

Greens/EFA Proposals on Ethics and Transparency	What was adopted, what was rejected

Members of the European Parliament should be prohibited from engaging in lobbying activities, whether paid or	+ MEPs are prohibited from engaging in paid lobbying
unpaid.	-Unpaid lobbying is not covered
MEPs acting as lawyers or consultants should be obliged to state who their clients are	- This was rejected by the EPP, S&D, ALDE
Members of the European Parliament should be covered by a cooling off period that prohibits them from taking on lobby jobs or other jobs that might cause a risk of a conflict of interest.	inadmissible by Parliament President Martin Schulz,
Members of the European Parliament should be required to declare the exact amounts of any additional income earned. They should also declare any properties and debts.	I *
	- Property and debt is not to be declared
The ethical committee should be composed of independent external experts, and its powers should be extended so that can initiate its own inquiries into ethics issues in the European Parliament and so it can proactively check MEP's Declarations of Interest.	-The advisory committee is still full composed of MEPs with no independent external experts
Its recommendations on ethics issues should be made public.	+ The advisory committee is obliged to publish an annual report

For further reading from the Greens/EFA group please see:

Green Plan on Transparency and Integrity

Fixing a broken ethics system in 5 simple steps

European Parliament timidly improves transparency, integrity and ethics

The report "Moonlighting in Brussels" by Transparency International EU on MEP's side jobs can be found here.

Recommended

Press release

https://pixabay.com/de/illustrations/gesetz-gerechtigkeit-flagge-europa-6598281/

New EU Ethics Body essential for accountability & inte...

25.04.2024

Press release

Photo by Gabriel Miklós on Unsplash

Rule of law & EU policy must not be blackmailed by Orb...

13.12.2023

Press release

EUCO: Quote from Terry Reintke

26.10.2023

Study

poland supreme court (CC BY 2.0) David Berkowitz

The case for activating the rule of law conditionality...

19.10.2023

Responsible MEPs

Sven Giegold

Member

Contact person

Alex Johnson

Press & Media Advisor EN (English language press)

Please share

•E-Mail