Let's support Syrians in rebuilding

MEP Hannah Neumann during plenary debate

After the sudden collapse of Bashar al-Assad's brutal regime in Syria, the country aims to rebuild. While the geopolitical implications and the humanitarian situation in the region are debated in the European Parliament, Greens/EFA MEP Hannah Neumann, the Group's coordinator in the Committee on Foreign Affairs, comments on the situation:

~~The collapse of the Assad regime in Syria is a historic moment. It marks the end of a brutal regime that has caused immense suffering and displacement. The Syrian people deserve a peaceful and democratic future. The international community must support the Syrian people in their struggle for freedom and justice. The European Union should lead by example and support the Syrian people in their quest for a better future.~~

~~Rebuilding Syria is not only a humanitarian imperative but also a geopolitical necessity. A stable and democratic Syria is essential for the region's peace and stability. The European Union should work closely with the Syrian people and the international community to support the rebuilding process. We must ensure that the Syrian people have a say in their future and that the rebuilding process is transparent and accountable.~~

Background:

The fall of Bashar al-Assad's regime brings an end to 54 years of brutality, repression, and terror. Over 500,000 lives were lost during the civil war in the last 13 years, millions were displaced, and an peaceful and just transition to a democratic Syria.
