

Job Opening: Logistics and Editorial officer

Contractual agent, FG III, until 31/12/2028

The Greens/EFA Group in the European Parliament Group seeks a full-time Logistics and Editorial officer to join its Communication Strategy team in Brussels. The post offers a varied role, combining organisational, strategic support and editorial work.

A/Description of the function

This role involves supporting the Communication Strategy department in the daily realisation of projects through a variety of workstreams. The role will involve working closely with the Head of Communication for the delivery of projects on a weekly basis, such as the annual budget and logistical planning for events, to operational coordination with different units and offices of Members of the European Parliament (MEPs). The role foresees a strong editorial element, for external communications, including in the delivery of copy for digital, such as campaigns, web articles and social media, as well as offline material for events or external activities. The role will require good project management and prioritisation skills to support the realisation of overall communication strategies set by the department. Such work will feed into the Group's global political and communication strategy. The role will focus on:

- Administrative and operational coordination: Provide administrative and organisational support to the Head of Communication and the Communication Strategy Team, including communication planning, manage translation requests, calendars and cross-team workflows; organise meetings, prepare agendas and minutes, follow up on decisions and deadlines, and facilitate information flows across different teams as well as with MEPs offices.
- Budget and procurement: Contribute to the annual budget planning and monitoring, consolidate resource needs, coordinate financial requests, tenders, contracts, framework contracts and invoice processing in liaison with the Finance Team.
- Editorial work: Contribute to the preparation of external communication, campaign and digital communication materials, ensuring consistency with strategic priorities. This includes writing, editing and proofreading digital content, such as blogs, online actions or social media, and for offline material for events or external facing activities.
- Communication strategy and messaging: Support the development and implementation of communication strategies aligned with the Group's political priorities. Contribute to the development of key messages, communication proposals and plans, ensuring coherence across communication activities and materials. Coordinate communication planning around plenary sessions, ensuring that the Group's political priorities are reflected in communication calendars and translated into timely and coherent communication activities.
- Project management and events: Coordinate communication projects from planning to delivery, including timelines, responsibilities, resources and follow-up. Contribute to the development of internal guidelines and working methods and support the planning and organisation of major external-facing activities, trainings, team events and meetings with internal and external stakeholders.
