EU banking supervision rules to finalised

Mon. 28 Jan. – Triilogue negotiations with Council and Commission

Negotiations between the European Parliament, Council and Commission on crucial new EU rules on banking supervision - part of the EU banking union - are in their final phase, with agreement possible next week. The Greens have concerns about democratic controls, as well as concerns about potential conflicts of interest with the ECB's mandate and provisions to reflect the diversity of banking models (see latest press release).

Modernising the railway market - new EU rules

Weds. 30 Jan. – European Commission proposals (possible)

After some delay, the Commission is expected to present proposals updating EU rules on railways. The 4th railway package will include proposals on unbundling services, public service obligations, safety and network interoperability. The Greens support plans to properly separate rail infrastructure management and operations but stress the need to prevent financial flows between separate units, as well as ensuring the highest safety standards. The group believes rail must continue to play a role as a public service, and believes more progress is needed on interoperability to ensure a true single European rail area.
